Actuate and mLogica to Deliver Enterprise Data Management Solutions in Western North America

Actuate and mLogica Announce a Strategic Business Agreement to Focus on Data Governance, Data Integrity and Data Transformation Solutions

SAN MATEO, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Actuate Corporation (NASDAQ:ACTU), the leader in delivering Rich Internet Applications Without Limits™, and mLogica, Inc, a leading database and business intelligence technology consulting company specializing in IBM and Sybase information management software, today announced the completion of an agreement that will enable mLogica to incorporate Actuate software, including Actuate's BIRT-based commercial products, as part of its Enterprise Data Management solutions. The solutions will be for mLogica's North America customer base, with a focus in the Western region.

mLogica's Enterprise Data Management offerings, coupled with its expertise in database design, modelling and management, address organizations' data governance, data privacy, data quality, and integrity challenges. Actuate's RIA-ready information platform, running on iServer Express and iServer, will be tightly integrated into mLogica's offerings to efficiently transform organizations' mission-critical data into meaningful information via productive web-based reports. These solutions will provide joint customers an affordable and effective way to manage and transform data and deliver real time, secure information for enhanced user experience and facilitate critical business decisions.

"We are using Open Source Eclipse BIRT to produce reports for our financial consultants and clients. Being able to produce insightful and interactive reports about our client's investments is of utmost importance to us. We have extended our use of Eclipse BIRT to Actuate's BIRT-based commercial trial offerings," said Neil Cheatham, President, Capital Network, Inc. "We are pleased with the enhanced and intuitive user experience, from the highly interactive and personalized reports Actuate's BIRT-based products also allow us to the schedule secure report generation using Actuate iServer Express. Incorporating Actuate and mLogica's technical know-how in building BIRT-based applications has not only increased our client's satisfaction in our financial services consultancy and offerings, but maximized our existing investment in our IBM Data Management System."

With the incorporation of Actuate offerings, mLogica is able to continue to offer better implemented and managed mission critical business applications, databases and systems for large commercial enterprises and public sector organizations as well as mid-market businesses. mLogica's clients include major organizations in the financial services, entertainment, technology, education, health care, telecommunications, manufacturing and transportation and logistics industries.

"mLogica's Enterprise Data Management offerings will be significantly enhanced with our relationship with Actuate," said Amit Okhandiar, President and CEO, mLogica Inc. "Actuate's formidable experience in delivering rich, dynamic Business Intelligence and reporting applications, in this case BIRT-based applications, can be adopted by many in our joint customer base, and we look forward to helping our customers achieve greater value."

"Many organizations that embark on a data management project require a data transformation strategy to ensure that important information is delivered to the right people at the right time in the most efficient way. Actuate's solutions, including our BIRT-based commercial offerings, enhance employee productivity and improve customer loyalty by enabling the entire organization to proactively get the information that they need in a timely manner, rather than simply operating in a reactionary mode," said Nobby Akiha, SVP of Marketing for Actuate Corporation. "By the use of Actuate technology, mLogica demonstrates their commitment to helping clients deploy Rich Internet Applications that help them achieve breakthrough corporate performance."

mLogica is a technology and product consulting company headquartered in Orange County, California, with development centers and international offices in California, India, Scotland and Malaysia.
